 By Nicolson and Anderson, these three-quarter face groats and half groats, now given to James IV., are attributed to James II. It is in the Pembroke plates (1746), apparently, that they first appear under James IV. There is better reason to attribute them in greater part to James III, as they are the only silver coins that correspond to the Acts of 1483, 1485, and renewed Oct. 1488, and to the Mint accounts of the period. The coinage 14th January, 1488-9, had the face "eywyn," i. e. even, or full-faced.
